

“I feel blessed to have a career that I truly enjoy where I can build long-lasting relationships and help patients overcome dental fear.”

Leslie Nason had two stalwart role models influencing her to become a dentist—her father and her uncle. Now she serves as a mentor to others considering the field—from young interns she welcomes into her Keller dental practice to a younger cousin who’s already following in her footsteps.

“Throughout my fifteen year dental career I’ve found most rewarding the relationships I’m able to forge with my patients,” she said. “We serve many families from Mom and Dad to the children and Grandma and Grandpa too. It’s important to help patients overcome dental fear through building trust and with modern dental techniques like oral sedation. We treat our patients like family, educating them about the best way to care for their teeth.”

“I love transforming smiles through cosmetic dentistry and implants,” she said. “We can change a patient’s life with a new smile or regaining the ability to eat.”

“Family is very important to me,” she said. “I travel whenever I can with my daughter and parents. My father is a wonderful tour guide with his knowledge of history. My daughter is learning about architecture and economics without even realizing it!”

Leslie can be seen cheering her daughter on at volleyball, basketball, soccer games and track meets—depending on the season. She supports several athletic booster clubs and school bands, including Keller, Grapevine/Colleyville and Carroll ISDs.

Dr. Nason even finds time to volunteer for the Greater Southlake Women’s Society, Save-a-Smile, the JPS Children’s Clinic, GRACE and runs to raise money for the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society. “It’s so important to give back to the community when you can,” she said, “whether it’s contributing to a youth group or providing much needed dental services to the underserved in our community.”
